

Lunch and Learn Presentation Template

Educational Presentation for Referral Sources

BEFORE THE PRESENTATION

- Confirm date, time, and room with your contact at least one week ahead
- Ask how many attendees to expect and what roles they hold
- Choose a topic relevant to their patient population
- Prepare food that is easy to eat during a presentation (no messy options)
- Arrive 15 minutes early to set up

PRESENTATION STRUCTURE (15 TO 20 MINUTES)

- 1 Opening (2 minutes)
Introduce yourself briefly. Thank the team for their time. State the topic and why it matters to their patients.
- 2 The Problem (3 minutes)
Describe a common challenge their patients face that relates to your topic. Use a relatable scenario, not statistics.
- 3 Key Education Points (8 minutes)
Cover 3 to 4 specific, practical takeaways. Use simple language. Avoid acronyms unless you define them. Connect each point back to patient outcomes.
- 4 How to Identify Patients (3 minutes)
Give them clear, actionable signs to look for. This is the most valuable part for clinical staff.
- 5 Q&A and Close (3 minutes)
Open the floor for questions. Thank them again. Leave your card and a one page reference sheet.

SUGGESTED TOPICS

- Common misconceptions about hospice care
- How to have the hospice conversation with families
- Hospice eligibility criteria for specific diagnoses
- The difference between palliative care and hospice
- How hospice supports the facility care team

- What families wish they had known sooner

COMMON MISTAKES TO AVOID

- Talking too much about your company instead of educating
- Using too many slides or reading from notes
- Going over 20 minutes (respect their schedule)
- Forgetting to leave a reference sheet or contact info
- Not following up within 48 hours after the presentation

THE REAL GOAL

A lunch and learn is not a sales pitch. It is an opportunity to establish yourself as a knowledgeable, trustworthy resource. If you do that well, the referrals will follow naturally.
